There are six spelling mistakes in these paragraphs. Circle the misspelled words. Write the words correctly on the lines below.

Early in the mourning, Ben Franklin had a good feeling. He could tell it was going to be a starmy day and he needed lightning to test his idea. Ben was so excited he didn't even change his clothes. He just wore the same clothes he had warn yesterday.

His idea was that lightning is a large spork, like the ones he would get by rubbing his feet on the corpet and touching the doar handle.

That night, he was finally ready. He tied his kite string to a key and then he flew his kite. Up it went into the windy night and soon lightning struck it. To his delight, he saw a spark jump from the key. He knew he had been right.
